Coming Home

I put one foot in the water
Just to test my resolution
I'm not sure I've got exactly what it takes
But as my body's getting colder
My intent is growing bolder
And I push my limitations till they break
I don't care if this ends up a big mistake

I'll cross that bridge I will not hide
I'll see what's on the other side
I'll step beyond the world I've come to know
I won't let questions hold me back
My faith is more than what I lack
It's courage over reason where I'm going
I'm headed where my spirit's free to roam
I'm coming home

As I wade a little deeper
Fear and doubt begin to seep in
I wonder how I've gotten to this place
I'm about to head for shore
But something's stirring at my core
I know the time has come for me to find my way
I know that I am different today

I'll cross that bridge I will not hide
I'll see what's on the other side
I'll step beyond the world I've come to know
I won't let questions hold me back
My faith is more than what I lack
It's courage over reason where I'm going
I'm headed where my spirit's free to roam
I'm coming home

Now I am standing with my head above the water
Taking a breath before I slip into the sea
Saying a prayer as I prepare to cross the border
Then right before my eyes
The crimson sea divides

I'll cross that bridge I will not hide
I'll see what's on the other side
I'll step beyond the world I've come to know
I won't let questions hold me back
My faith is more than what I lack
It's courage over reason where I'm going
I'm headed where my spirit's free to roam
I'm coming home

Copyright 2007 Todd Herzog (VoxArt Music, ASCAP)